ANTHROPOLOGICAL EXPERIENCES

“activities that aim at encounters, social coexistence and interlocation of researchers”
ATTENTION

YOU ONLY HAVE UNTIL MAY 30TH TO MAKE THE PAYMENT AT THE 2nd TURN OF REGISTRATIONS FEES (and maintain your work on the Programm)

an invitation to encounters
"Anthropological Experiences" are activities that aim at encounters, social coexistence and interlocution of researchers participating on the 18th IUAES World Congress with local communities. It is an opportunity for the congressmen and women to meet different communities, cultures and ethnic groups that integrate the state of Santa Catarina in its local realities.

The Anthropological Experiences are organized to occur simultaneously and articulated to propositions of the congress’ thematic axes. They will also allow participants to go through paths and places from an anthropological view built by research relations with these social groups, communities and localities. Therefore, through these same groups the activities enable congress participants to get to know their knowledge, their stories, forms of organization and political mobilization, resistance and fights for the preservation of the environment, for the right to land, to culture and to the affirmation of their culture and identity.

These activities’ itineraries are foreseen to have a duration of 2 to 8 hours (always coming back to UFSC for the plenary activities that begin at 4 p.m.) and will occur during all the congress week with the displacement of the participants to different places and communities. Two of them will be held on the weekend (July 15th and 21st) with a duration of 10 hours.

To participate in one or more Anthropological Experiences it is necessary to fill in a registration form related to the chosen experiences. Each itinerary will have a limited number of participants. The confirmation will be done by order of registration request. For the activities that have the necessity of anticipated payment please check the procedure at the itinerary informations. The link for registrations will be available soon.

(Text informed by the author)
Children in IUAES aims to provide a space for pedagogical, anthropological and playful experiences articulated with the discussions of the event to children who accompany adults who are inserted and participating in the 18th IUAES World Congress. In an attempt to fulfill this objective, this action aims to provide activities / workshops in an appropriate space for the development of activities, while the adults take part in other activities. The workshops will be led by professional and student educators.

OBJECTIVE

We propose to provide children between the ages of two and ten who accompany the adults registered in the event for the development of learning, play, and new experiences. These will be carried out by educators prepared and instructed to contemplate issues involving gender, children's cultures and education, in order to awaken in children reflections and experiences inspired by discussions about diversity, childhood and gender. Thus, in connection with the event, such activities are planned in a manner compatible with the interests and needs of the children, in order to promote a space in which they are treated as subjects of rights and important cultural agents and producers.

The space will be held at the Child Development Center (NDI), a university child education institution of UFSC. In this way, the community around the institution can participate in exchanges and learning. We emphasize the promotion of an experience of critical formation attentive to the issues of cultural, ethnic-racial, generational, and intergenerational diversities. The design of the project also challenges the roles of motherhood and paternity interposed on the professional and academic identity, pertinent to the reflections that permeate the event.

- Sign up for Children of the IUAES will be held through the web site of the event in the your registered area.
- Children from 2 to 10 years, who have registered at the event, can participate;
- Up to 30 children will be served divided in 2 classes of 15 each in the afternoon period, respecting the order of enrollment;
- Opening hours - 13 - 13:30 (entrance) until 17h30 - 18h (departure), during the days of the event;
- The enrollment is guaranteed through completion of the form, in addition to the presentation of the following documents of the child: birth certificate and current vaccination card;
- Only children whose parents or guardians are current with the payment of their registration at the event may participate.
- Snacks will be offered by the organizers of the event and served at the institution and will have a value of R$ 100.00 (one hundred reais) for all days, paid through the website (specific cases related to food restrictions should be agreed in advance with the Commission Organizer through the electronic form). The amount also includes transportation when necessary.
The Organizing Committee of the 18th IUAES (International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences) World Congress has created a specific website to enable the SOLIDARITY HOSTING of congress participants in local residents’ homes.

On the site Facebook Page “Hospedagem Solidária IUAES Congress - Brazil”, attendees will be able to talk with local residents who will voluntarily open their houses to welcome congress participants.

The Commission will also make available on the site a team to mediate the dialogue between foreigners and local residents in English, French, and Spanish.

The 18th IUAES World Congress will take place from July 16th to 20th, 2018, at the UFSC campus in Florianópolis (Santa Catarina, Brazil).

Three thousand people involved from 94 countries are expected to meet in Florianópolis, Brazil, during the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences (IAUES) World Congress, from July 16th to the 20th. The Federal University of Santa Catarina (UFSC), will be the first South American university to host the event.

Held every five years in varied locations around the globe, the IUAES World Congress will unite scientists and institutions from the field of anthropology and ethnology, as well as their interdisciplinary relations, in five days of panels, symposiums, mini-courses, workshops, plenary sessions and assemblies, as well as book launches, audiovisual shows, cultural presentations, among other attractions. This year’s theme is "World (of) Encounters: The Past, Present and Future of Anthropological Knowledge", an attempt to bring a collective reflection on the current moment in Anthropology, in a world marked by inequalities and cultural differences.

The idea is to promote a multicultural experience, starting at the Congress’s opening ceremony, and continuing throughout the week, with activities for children ages 2 - 10, as well as experiences such as visitations to local traditional communities and other cultural and touristic attractions.

The event is organized by IUAES and the Brazilian Anthropology Association (ABA), with UFSC professor Miriam Pillar Grossi, Ph.D. as its general coordinator and one of IUAES vice-presidents. Also supporting the World Congress is the Federal University of Santa Catarina (UFSC), the Santa Catarina State University (UDESC) and the Federal Institute of Santa Catarina (IFSC).

Programme
Two keynote speakers are confirmed: Amita Baviskar, Ph.D. (Institute of Economic Growth | Delhi University Enclave | India) and Gustavo Lins Ribeiro, Ph.D. (Universidad Autonoma de Mexico - Mexico | Universidade de Brasilia - Brasil).

In addition, the Congress will have 8 plenary sessions, symposiums organized by international associations, more than two hundred panels with two thousand oral presentations submitted and organized within 38 thematic axes, 35 exhibitions of ethnographic photographic researches, Audiovisual Exhibition with 18 ethnographic films from 10 countries, workshops, work meetings, and cultural activities.
